About Judith

Judith's story is rooted in Australia, where she was born and raised. In her mid-20s, her adventurous spirit took her to London and Geneva, before deciding to come home and settle down in Sydney with her French husband.

As a relocation consultant, she finds joy in seeing that clients are super excited for their new adventure once they have a home to move into. She also enjoys having the chance to share a coffee together after they've arrived and settled in to welcome them. For her, this connection is satisfying.

Judith is also a fan of reinventing oneself. "No matter where you move to, one very special aspect of your new life is that you get to choose who you want to be and how you want to show up for yourself in an exciting new way," she begins. "If from time to time you find your emotions are a bit wobbly with all the newness, that's just fine. You're going to discover some wonderful qualities, both in your new environment and in yourself."

To settle in faster, Judith recommends participating in hobbies and sports and anything enjoyable. For her, it's a great way to meet other like-minded people and begin creating those connections that bring warmth and friendship.
